

Max Bathaee
Atmel

Director of Marketing, Network Storage Products

Prior to joining Atmel he worked as a Director of Marketing at LDIC a private fabless semiconductor company that focused on designing VLSI products for mobile disk drives and network products. He holds a BS degree in multiple disciplines including telecommunication, educational technology and sociology in addition to being a certified instructional designer. He has been member of many industry organizations such as IEEE and IDEMA and has been contributed to numerous publications with the industry articles.